MORAN'S MACHINE RUINS A CANYON

Beautiful City Creek Drive Way Will be Useless Until it Is Removed.

ORDERED OUT BY COUNCIL.

But Like J. Street Scenic Railway It Still Continues to Do Business At the Old Stand.

When the "American" party came into power two great detriments existed to the creation of a most beautiful driveway which was planned to become the greatest beautifying movement the

These detriments were P. J. Moran, and the lack of a bridge along the eastern wing of the canyon boulevard, which was almost completed when the change in administration came.

To contribute his share of the delinquency, P. J. Moran operated an offensive rock crusher in City Creek canyon near the mouth. Its eternal noise made near the mouth. Its eternal noise made driving dangerous, and the entire canyon unattractive. Its ever accompanying cloud of dust made it a disagreeable thing to pass, even if one drove horses immune to thundering noises.

The people rose in their indignation and demanded its removal. That was two years ago. The city council ordered it removed. It remains there today. Pat J. Meran has continued to crush rock there. The canyon has continued in its unattractiveness. tinued in its unattractiveness.

BEFORE THE MAYOR.

While the people have protested Pat. has laughed. How long is the condition to remain? Councilman Wells took up the matter with Mayor Bransford, in connection with Pat's laugh when he heard he was expected to remove his. J street scenic railroad. That was the day before yesterday. Today Pat is loading wagons at the J street edifice in the same old manner. The canyon rock crusher is no nearer to removal than it was two years ago when it was first ordered out.

COMMERCIAL CLUB FUND.

On City creek canyon the Commeron City creek canyon the Commercial club spent $5,000 to build a concrete bridge over the creek, and build the boulevard along the east canyon wall. For other sources $15,000 was spent, and yet the driveway is useless. Those who have been over it declare that there is no more inspiring view in all the intermountain country, than in all the intermountain country, than that coming down the east wing, out of the canyon to the bench land, where the drive is planned to run along the hills to Fort Douglas.

ALMOST A DRIVE.

All that is necessary to do is to bridge one gulley, or fill it, and grade a few rough places. The whole expenditure need not exceed $1,000 to make it usable, plus the removal of Pat Moran's noise machine in the canyon.

INVESTMENT USELESS.

After that, when funds are available, the problem of planting trees along the way, and fencing the drive may be taken up, but it will not have any chance to take its place in popular favor so long as the rock crusher remains. It represents an investment of nearly $20,000 and why should one contractor continue through the years to render this investment useless to the public which made it to help beautify Salt Lake? Salt Lake?

AN ANCIENT PROMISE.

C. S. Burton, vice president of the Commercial club, who took a very ac-tive part in raising the Commercial club fund which went to bridging City club fund which went to bridging City creek, declared today that he regarded this boulevard as one of the things the city could profit most by in arranging it for traffic. "It was a splendid idea to have it." said Mr. Burton, "and it should never have been allowed to drop out of public notice. When the protests against Pat Moran's gravel crusher first went in, he came to me, as I was one of the signers, and assured me it would be removed in the very near future. I recall that it was not, and that the matter was carried to the council, where an order was secured for its removal, but it was never carried out."

Worthy Object to Benefit from "Commercials" Outing Tomorrow.

The Utah Commercial Travelers, otherwise known as the "U. C. T.," will take an outing to Lagoon tomorrow, and the day promises to be one of unusual interest. The members of the organization are noted as "hustlers," and they are going to make of this excursion something long to be remembered. In this affair the U. C. T. has an exceedingly worthy object in view, it being none other than the view, it being none other than to assist in providing a home for boys at Canyon Crest. The entire proceeds of the day will be devoted to the fur-therance of that most excellent cause. The program for tomorrow will be an interesting one. The Travelers are merrymakers ever, and this occasion will be no exception to the rule. A feature of the day's spirits will be a game of baseball, played between the CONSPIRACY CHARGED.

E. D. Hashimoto, Labor Agent, Accused of Attempting to Defraud.

Alleging that E. D. Hashimote, the Japanese labor agent, and his foreman, K. Yamashita, conspired together to defraud he and other merchants in this city, S. D. Parver today filed suit in the district court against Hashimoto, Heber M. Wells and the Utah Savings & Trust company, to recover the total sum of $413.84 alleged to be due on checks $413.54 alleged to be due on checks cashed by plaintiff and his predecessors in interest for laborers of Hashimoto. It is alleged that for some time past Hashimoto had informed the merchanis that checks issued by his foreman, Yamashita, were all right and they had been cashed without any protest. There was critically they had been cashed without any pro-test. There was evidently a change in his methods, however, as on June 20, 1907, plaintiff and several well known firms in the city cashed checks issued in the usual manner by Hashimoto's foreman, but when they were present-ed at the Utah Savings & Trust com-pany for payment they were not hon-ored.

The firm which cashed the checks for Jap laborers on the date and who assigned their claims to plaintiff are: Rowe & Kelly Co., P. H. O'Neil, I. Cline & Bro., A. H. Crabbe Co., Gray Bros, & Co., and J. Solomon & Son. Judgment is asked of defendants for the full amount of the checks together with interest from June 20. terest from June 20.

OF THE CAREY ACT

Wyoming Senator's "Rider" in General Appropriation Bill Of 1894, Important.

WEST GAINS GREATLY BY IT.

Mass of Information Presented by New York Daily to Show Wonderful Strides Made as Result.

Special Correspondence.

New York, Aug. 18.-The Evening Post of this city yesterday presented a mass of information on the conversion of western prairie land by irrigation and under the provisions of the Carey act. The article follows in its entirety:

In August, 1894, just as Congress was on the eve of adjournment, a rider was placed upon the general appropriation bill that subsequent developments have proven to be one of the wisest and most important pieces of legislation ever enacted for the development and upbuilding of the west. This was the Carey act, of which ex-Senator Joseph M. Carey, of Cheyenne, Wyo., was the author. Stated in the briefest possible terms, it provided for the conation of not more than 1,000,000 acres of the vacant public domain to each of the states in which desert public lands are located, conditional upon the reclamation of such lands by the state or under state control. der state control.

AIDS STATE IRRIGATION.

AIDS STATE IRRIGATION.

State irrigation under the operation of the Carey act has now attained proportions that compare not unfavorably with the results being accomplished by the great scheme of national reclamation under the Hansbrough-Newlands law. The greatest irrigation project yet undertaken in America is being carried to a successful completion in Idaho under the provisions of the Carey act; and the projects now being developed by it will call for a total investment of private capital in reservoirs, dams, capals, and laterals in excess of $20,000,000, for the reclamation of more than 2,000,000 acres of land that now form part of the desert. If it is assumed that the average size of the farms into which these newly irrigated districts will eventually be subdivided will be 40 acres, then the Carey act is the instrumentality for the provision of homes for fully 50,000 American farmers and their families, or for a total farming population of 250,000 persons.

ACCEPTED BY UTAH.

Idaho, Wyoming and Oregon are the three states in which the greatest progress has been made in Carey act irrigation, although Montana is now taking a conspicuous place in the column. One important project is now under way in Colorado, with strong probabilities that numerous others will soon follow. Utah, Washington and Nevada have accepted the provisions of the act, but none of the selections of desert lands for reclamation in those states has been approved by the secretary of the interior. North Dakota and South Dakota remain strangely apathetic. In New Mexico there is a very general desire that Congress extend the benefits of the law, but the last legislature was too busy shaking the plum tree to pay attention to legislation designed to benefit the people. The law would be particularly beneficial to New Mexico for the reason that in that territory there are suitable locations for a very large number of small irrigation projects that could be carried into effect large number of small irrigation pro-jects that could be carried into effect at little cost if the public lands affected could be segregated in the same manner as in the states.

PROJECTS UNDER WAY.

The following table-although it may not be entirely complete—will give a very fair idea of the extent of state irrigation under the Carey act, showing approximately the number of acres of land in each state that will be reclaimed by projects now under

CORPORATE ENNTERPRISE, ALSO. Between state irrigation under the

Between state irrigation under the Carey act, and national irrigation under the Hansbrough-Newlands reclamation laws, there is no conflict or antagonism. The field is large enough for both. In general it may be stated as the intention of the government to handle under the national reclamation laws such projects as are, from their magnitude, or from the engineering or legal difficulties, unlikely to prove attractive to private capital. However, that the magnitude of an undertaking of this character is not always a bar against corporate enterprise is proven by the great project now nearing completion by the Twin Falls Land and Water company on the Snake River, Idaho. Water is diverted from the Snake river by means of a dam 2,000 feet long, 80 feet high, and 450 feet wide at the base. When completed it will irrigate 410,000 acres of virgin land, making it an enterprise of greater of for a feet winder than any of similar characters as far undertaken or even practice. er magnitude than any of similar char-acter so far undertaken or even pro-jected by the national government. A very large body of land under this pro-ject is already "under the ditch."

ONE CHANGE EFFECTED.

Two years ago there were not a half-a-dozn houses on the whole domain. Today there are more than 1,000 farm houses and four thriving towns—Twin Falls, Kimberley, Buhl, and Hanson. The largest of the towns is Twin Falls, which already has 80 business houses, a hotel costing $10,000, electric lights, a telephone system, and the beginning of a sewer system, with a population of more than 3,000.

OTHER IDAHO PROJECTS.

The other Idaho projects being car-The other Idaho projects being carried forward under the same law are the Marysville Canal company in Fremont county, covering 6,600-acres; the American Falls Canal and Power company, Bingham county 51,000 acres; the Canon Canal project, Canon county, 11,825 acres of public lands and 8,000 acres of private land; the Glens Ferry Land and Irrigation company, 18,000 acres; the Mullens Canal and Reservation company, 65,000 acres; the Big Lost River project, 80,000 acres; the Lost River Reclamation company, 115,000 acres; and the Idaho Irrigation company, 45,000 acres.

WYOMING ACTIVITIES

WYOMING ACTIVITIES.

WYOMING ACTIVITIES.

The largest Carey act project so far undertaken in Wyoming is that of the Oregon Basin company, which will irrigate 200,000 acres of land on the South Fork of the Shoshone river. It is expected that all of this land will be under the ditch some time in 1907. Other important projects in Wyoming are those of the Big Horn Sasin Development company, 32,429 acres; the Big Horn Basin Colonization company, 20,599 gores; the Ford Laramie Canal & State of the corporations Gov. Sheldon has decilined to appoint delegates to a national convention called at St. Louis of business men to recommend amendments to Reservoir company, 27,000 acres; the Medicine Wheel Canal company, 56,000 acres; the Eden Canal & Irrigation company, 64,000 aces, and the Western Irrigation company, 29,000 acres. There are a number of other projects in this state, no one of which will reclaim more than 20,000 acres.

AMENDMENT PROBABLE.

Ex-Senator Carey, the author of the act, stated in a recent interview with the writer that when the act passed it the writer that when the act passed in the writer that when the writer that when the writer that when the writer that we will be act to the writer that when the act passed it was generally understood among his colleagues in the senate that it any state should secure the reclamation of the maximum amount permitted by the Carey act, and feel the need of the amendment of the law to permit of the patenting of still larger amounts of the public domain to the state, there would be no difficulty in securing such amendment. Both Idaho and Wyoming are now within measurable distance of the time when every acre permitted to be segregated under the existing law will be called for. In neither of these states has Carey act irrigation been applied or projected to nearly all the land readily available. It is, therefore, probable that an amendment will be proposed to the law permitting the donation of 2,000,000 or more acres to any state able to secure the reclamation of such amounts.

OREGON WIDE AWAKE.

OREGON WIDE AWAKE.

The most important state project under way in Oregon, under the Carey act is that of the Deschutes Irrigation & Power company—really a consolidation of three smaller projects comprising in all 25,000 acres of land. The lands thus being reclaimed are all in the desert between Crooked river on the north, Bear Creek mountains on the south, and the Deschutes river on the south, and the Deschutes river on the

COLORADO HAS BEEN SLOW.

COLORADO HAS BEEN SLOW.

Considering the topographic advantages and the abundant water supply available in Colorado, capitalists have been strangely slow to seize the opportunities open to them for profitable enterprises in that state. The act was accepted by the state legislature 11 years ago, but not until within the past few months was an important project started under its provisions. That is located in Routt county, on the Little Snake river—a tributary of the Yampa. This enterprise is being conducted by the Snake River Canal company. The reservoir will be located on the Slater Fork canyon of the Little Snake river, deriving its waters from the mountains north of Hahn's peak. The dam will be 65 feet nigh and 127 feet wide at the top, impounding enough water for the irrigation of from 50,000 to 65,000 acres of land. In addition to the reservoir, 65 miles of canals and laterals will be constructed, the plan costing about $300,000. This, however, represents a first cost of plant of only $6 for each acre of land reclaimed, as against an average first cost of government irrigation projects amounting to $35 a acre. By building the dam 35 feet higher, its storage capacity can be doubled. As the water supply is ample and the lands available, it is probable that this will ultimately be done. able that this will ultimately be done.

OFFERS SPECIAL ADVANTAGES. The Carey act is peculiar in that its The Carey act is peculiar in that its provisions offer special advantages to both settlers and construction companies. As stated by C. E. Wantland, a railroad company's general sales agent who has made a particular study of all public land questions, this law affords to capital its only opportunity to share in the reclamation of the Arid Empire. Irrigation enterprises, conducted by private persons or corporations, are impracticable under either the homestead or the desert land laws; the homestead or the desert land laws, but under the Carey act capital is ab-solutely secure, while the rights of setlers are fully protected by state super vision and control. The state in fact, owns the land until the settler has paid for his water rights; and deferred payments for the water rights are a first lien upon the land in favor of the construction company until they have been fully liquidated.

SETTLERS GET BIG BENEFITS.

The advantages to the settlers consist in the extremely easy terms offered, and in the fact that the ownership of the irrigation system passes into their hands when the construction company has been paid. Each state has its own laws, defining the terms upon which ownership of lands and water rights may be acquired. The two are inseparable. The lands segregated under the Carey act cannot be acquired without the water rights, nor can the water the Carey act cannot be acquired without the water rights, nor can the water rights be acquired without the lands. Most of the states have modeled their laws after those of Idaho, which are, therefore, fairly typical. Under these laws an entry can be made either in person or by agent, the amount being limited to 160 acres to one person. No resident is required until within six months after notice that water is ready for delivery. After that time residence is continuous until final proof, which is usually made within 90 days, but which can be made at any time within three years after delivery of water. One-eighth of the land is required to be cultivated, and Carey act entries are assignable.

ENCOURAGES HOME SEEKERS.

ENCOURAGES HOME SEEKERS.

ENCOURAGES HOME SEEKERS.

These liberal provisions of the law are particularly attractive to homeseekers. Suitable reclamation of the land is required; but at the same time residence is not required until water is ready for delivery, and until conditions are such that life is tolerable. The fact that entries are transferable and title easily acquired are of inestimable value in giving credit to members of these new communities that are being established in the desert with both bankers and merchants.

ASSISTS POOR MAN. ASSISTS POOR MAN.

The consideration is of the highest importance to the man who is poor in this world's goods, but who cherishes the laudable ambition to acquire a home. The price of land is 50 cents at the time entry is made and 25 cents payable on the making of final proof. The price of water rights varies from $10 up to $25 an acre, payable in annual instalments, in most cases of $2 an acre, with interest at 6 per cent on deferred payments. It is not unusual in the wonderfully fertile virgin soil of these irrigated lands to realize more than enough from the first crop to pay for the entire cost of the land and perpetual water rights.
